Discover the space, privacy, and possibilities waiting for you at 600 Blk Prejean Road in Carencro, Louisiana. This beautiful 20-acre tract is a rare chance to own large acreage in a growing area while still enjoying the peace of country living. Located in desirable Flood Zone X, this land gives buyers extra confidence for future plans. Tucked away at the end of Prejean Road, the tract feels like your own private retreat. Access runs along Prejean Road, which turns from pavement to gravel to a quiet grass path as it reaches the property, adding to the sense of seclusion many buyers are searching for. Whether you picture building a custom home, starting a family estate, creating a recreational getaway, or investing in land for the future, this property gives you room to bring your vision to life. The land was once farmland, so it offers relatively flat, workable terrain with plenty of potential. Zoning is currently flexible, giving you many possible paths forward, and you are still close to shopping, dining, schools, and Pelican Park. To help protect long-term value, the seller will restrict the property against salvage yard use and mobile or modular home parks. Large tracts like this, with room to grow and this much privacy, do not come along often in Carencro. Picture morning walks beneath mature trees, quiet evenings under open sky, or breaking ground
